Join The Hub and The Centre for Civic Engagement (CCE) for an important discussion on the high stakes consequences of November's U.S. election for Canada.

Wednesday, February 5, National Arts Centre, 7:00 pm to 9:00 pm. Catered reception followed by interactive discussion at 8:00 pm featuring Oren Cass in conversation with The Hub's Sean Speer.

Oren Cass is a bold and original policy thinker who is set to play an outsized role in American politics in Trump's second term. Described by New York Times columnist David Brooks as “the center of gravity of American conservatism”, Cass is influencing American conservative policy debates like few others thanks to his heterodox thinking about trade, markets and the role of government in the economy. For fresh insights into Trump's economic policies, The Hub and the CCE are pleased to host Oren Cass for a live and interactive discussion. He is the founder and chief economist of American Compass, a highly influential, U.S.-based think tank.
